The Department of Architecture in the College of Architecture, Art, and Planning at Cornell University invites applications for up to three non-tenure-track Professors of Practice positions beginning in fall 2016 with rank commensurate with qualifications. These positions may have terms of up to five years and are renewable.

The successful candidate for one of the positions will be responsible for developing and offering outstanding quality introductory-level studio instruction, and for teaching required and elective courses in architectural theory and/or visual representation at both professional bachelor and masters levels.

The successful candidate for a second Professor of Practice will be responsible for organizing and curating exhibitions and events of an exceptional quality pertaining to architecture, art, and planning in the college’s galleries, and for required and elective courses in architectural theory, culture, and society at both professional bachelor and masters levels.

The successful candidate for a third Professor of Practice will have substantial experience in architectural practice demonstrated through significant publication of their built work—in addition to strong insights and substantial experience in design teaching at both professional graduate and undergraduate levels. The position will also involve periodic instruction in an additional area—such as theory, representation, professional practice, or building technology—as related to the candidate's expertise.

As members of the department and Graduate Field of Architecture, Professors of Practice are also expected to advise B.Arch. and M.Arch. thesis students, as well as post-professional masters and Ph.D. students within their relevant specializations.

While these positions do not carry a research expectation, research activity is desirable.

The ideal candidate for a Professor of Practice position should possess graduate and/or professional degrees in architecture as well as extensive and distinguished records in teaching and pedagogical development in this field. Such distinction must be demonstrated through the applicant's studio briefs and course syllabi, documentation of student work, as well as significant contributions to an architecture program’s curriculum development and instructional environment.

Required Application Materials: (digital preferred)
1. Brief cover letter
2. Full curriculum vita
3. Concise statement describing areas of expertise, approach to pedagogy, and brief descriptions of possible elective seminars
4. Portfolio of pedagogical materials and student work
5. List of three references with telephone numbers, mailing addresses, and emails

Please note that hard-copy application materials will not be returned.

All applicants should submit their materials to:
Chair, Professor of Practice Search Committee
Department of Architecture
139 East Sibley Hall
Ithaca, NY 14853

(607) 255-7612 • arch_chair@cornell.edu

Review of applications will begin on January 15, 2016. Appointments are expected to begin fall 2016.

Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University’s heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities. We encourage applications from women and traditionally underrepresented minorities.