

Anna Dietzsch

Anna Dietzsch has a portfolio that includes the planning and design of significant architecture and urban projects in the United States and Brazil. Her professional experience includes public projects for governmental agencies, not-for-profit organizations and the private sector, blended with pro-bona activist projects related to place making, urban justice and land-rights. Her projects bridge “urban” and “natural” landscapes with special focus on place-based research for more resilient natural systems and communities. Her current research interests focus on the extensive urbanization of the Amazon region and how local knowledge could render alternative, hybrid models of development, or what she has called a “Third Landscape”.
